Public Health

$2,564,850

The Foundation’s 95 percent, of our increase in that number since the 29th decade. Leverages public health campaigns that address vaccination, prevention of injury and increased health literacy over surgical and hospital inpatient interventions. We have emphasized the harms for this brief intervention, which has steadily increased as a result of these issues. We have the public health campaigns around locations. We have seen an armament of strategies in areas defined, especially at the base of heart cancer, improving treatment options, and increasing awareness, to cut our communities’ rates with heart disease.

Importantly, our role of the elderly and those with disabilities, is to take charge of their own health, fitness and nutrition.

Professional Education

$3,772,000

People in our region’s full-time professional careers for attrition. Students of health sciences are open to new and better ways of delivering care, creating safety and best practices and removing waste and waste. Foundation grants and programs supplement standard academic curricula with new workshops on quality improvement, care giving, information technology, and safety. The Center for Shared Learning at UPMC teaches hundreds of local and national healthcare professionals to use the Perfecting Patient Care framework. Health Careers Futures addresses the need for new mongoose in our community, as well as the JHF Paid Internship. And, the Pittsburgh Regional Healthcare Initiative. We have increased immunization rates in areas related to sanitation, good information, and patient safety.

Jewish Healthcare Foundation

13 years of giving to the community

Jewish Community

$50,698,100

Includes $4,314,100

to the Jewish Association on Aging

As we advance in age, we strive to transform the way we experience health in the Jewish tradition, over human life, we work for God, we inhabit society. The Foundation measures its own value in the number of clients served, the number of ongoing engagements, the number of new centers and programs, and the number of additional dollars invested. As a result, over $34.5 million has been invested in the Jewish Community, and has helped our community maintain the vitality of Riverview Towers, a continuum of care for the elderly and disabled.

Jewish Healthcare Foundation

$3,189,500

We both fund and create sustainable, appropriate and effective health and human services and programs. We work in the Jewish tradition, over human life, we work for God, we inhabit society. The Foundation measures its own value in the number of clients served, the number of ongoing engagements, the number of new centers and programs, and the number of additional dollars invested. As a result, over $34.5 million has been invested in the Jewish Community, and has helped our community maintain the vitality of Riverview Towers, a continuum of care for the elderly and disabled.

Professional Education

$3,772,000

People in our region’s full-time professional careers for attrition. Students of health sciences are open to new and better ways of delivering care, creating safety and best practices and removing waste and waste. Foundation grants and programs supplement standard academic curricula with new workshops on quality improvement, care giving, information technology, and safety. The Center for Shared Learning at UPMC teaches hundreds of local and national healthcare professionals to use the Perfecting Patient Care framework. Health Careers Futures addresses the need for new mongoose in our community, as well as the JHF Paid Internship. And, the Pittsburgh Regional Healthcare Initiative. We have increased immunization rates in areas related to sanitation, good information, and patient safety.

Jewish Healthcare Foundation

13 years of giving to the community

Jewish Community

$50,698,100

Includes $4,314,100

to the Jewish Association on Aging

As we advance in age, we strive to transform the way we experience health in the Jewish tradition, over human life, we work for God, we inhabit society. The Foundation measures its own value in the number of clients served, the number of ongoing engagements, the number of new centers and programs, and the number of additional dollars invested. As a result, over $34.5 million has been invested in the Jewish Community, and has helped our community maintain the vitality of Riverview Towers, a continuum of care for the elderly and disabled.

We anticipate the harms caused by aging and respect the "unavoidable" determinations and diminished quality of life of older age. We seek better models to safeguard and improve the physical and mental health of our seniors, as well as their dignities and abilities to engage in community life. We seek to ensure that all senior members of our community have access to a full continuum of services and engagement, building on best practices and proven interventions. We enjoy a special relationship with the Jewish Association on Aging, an integrated care system with a state-of-the-art campus, made possible in the primary leader. We are pleased to have brought Philadelphia to Pittsburgh and to have helped adopt community and volunteer services to a senior population.

We anticipate the harms caused by aging and respect the "unavoidable" determinations and diminished quality of life of older age. We seek better models to safeguard and improve the physical and mental health of our seniors, as well as their dignities and abilities to engage in community life. We seek to ensure that all senior members of our community have access to a full continuum of services and engagement, building on best practices and proven interventions. We enjoy a special relationship with the Jewish Association on Aging, an integrated care system with a state-of-the-art campus, made possible in the primary leader. We are pleased to have brought Philadelphia to Pittsburgh and to have helped adopt community and volunteer services to a senior population.

As we advance in age, we strive to transform the way we experience health in the Jewish tradition, over human life, we work for God, we inhabit society. The Foundation measures its own value in the number of clients served, the number of ongoing engagements, the number of new centers and programs, and the number of additional dollars invested. As a result, over $34.5 million has been invested in the Jewish Community, and has helped our community maintain the vitality of Riverview Towers, a continuum of care for the elderly and disabled.

We anticipate the harms caused by aging and respect the “unavoidable” determinations and diminished quality of life of older age. We seek better models to safeguard and improve the physical and mental health of our seniors, as well as their dignities and abilities to engage in community life. We seek to ensure that all senior members of our community have access to a full continuum of services and engagement, building on best practices and proven interventions. We enjoy a special relationship with the Jewish Association on Aging, an integrated care system with a state-of-the-art campus, made possible in the primary leader. We are pleased to have brought Philadelphia to Pittsburgh and to have helped adopt community and volunteer services to a senior population.

We anticipate the harms caused by aging and respect the “unavoidable” determinations and diminished quality of life of older age. We seek better models to safeguard and improve the physical and mental health of our seniors, as well as their dignities and abilities to engage in community life. We seek to ensure that all senior members of our community have access to a full continuum of services and engagement, building on best practices and proven interventions.